C. P. R. EMPLOYEES RAISE GOLDEN BOMBER FUND

Montreal, Oct. 26. There will be one more giant bomber to teach Hitler the folly of his madness when C. P. R. employees reach their objective of 100,000 dollars of their Golden Bomber Fund.

Nearly 60,000 Canadian Pacific men and women are ransacking their homes for old gold for this worthy and patriotic purpose. And it is amazing what they are finding, what sacrifices they are making to help save the world from Hitlerism. While broken and out moded jewelry forms the contributions which have been received so far, there many wedding rings and family heirlooms.

In every branch of the service and in all parts of Canada, Canadian Pacific employees are giving their most enthusiastic support to this new war effort. Men and women who have dipped deeply into their savings and earnings to buy Government war savings certificates and to contribute to Field Ambulance Funds and Red Cross Campaigns, etc., are now parting with their old gold - treasured keepsakes in many cases.

London, Oct. 9 ('P)

Hon. J. C. Gardiner, Canadian agriculture minister, today met food ministry officials in a preliminary conference of his mission to learn the united kingdom food requirements.

Worth Preserving

This fall the prairie provinces of Western Canada have played host to an increasingly large number of American hunters and sportsmen who have come into this country to enjoy a few days or a few weeks of the magnificent sport which these broad spaces afford for those who enjoy hunting the game birds.

These hunters from south of the international boundary have been welcomed with open arms. Government officials and officials of local game preservation and hunting organizations have extended courtesies due to welcome guests with kindred aspirations and common interests. These visitors have been advised where the best hunting is obtainable, guides have been found for them and everything possible has been done to make their visit a happy one and to ensure good hunting for them.

The gates of hospitality have been flung wide open for these visiting hunters for several reasons. It is recognized that every American dollar left in this country is of value to Canada's war efforts and that the goodwill of these visitors will continue to pay dividends long after the war is over.

But apart from the economic aspect of the development of this form of the tourist industry, it is recognized that there are enough game birds in this country to afford good hunting for visitors as well as for our own people, provided all who participate in this class of sport are governed by the principles of good sportsmanship and are willing to abide by the regulations which have been laid down by the governing bodies to ensure the preservation of this great heritage in perpetuity for our enjoyment and for their enjoyment. We are willing to share our pleasures with neighbors for whom we have high regard and who, in actuality, are our Allies in a great cause.

Matter Of Concern

The open season for ducks and upland game birds was nicely under way this fall when an item appeared in one of the Western dailies announcing that it had been reported to officials of a provincial sports organization that "in some cases American hunters have been violating rules of sportsmanship by slaughtering birds in excess of their bag limits, for which they have no legitimate use."

The announcement is one which should be of considerable concern to the governments of the prairie provinces, to officials and membership of all organizations devoted to the conservation of game and wild life, to all lovers of wild life and the great outdoors and to the public generally.

The reason why this concern should be displayed is briefly summarized in the words of an official of one of the game conservation organizations in the second paragraph of the article to which reference is made in which he states that "if sportsmen generally adopted such practices, the prairies would soon be as devoid of game as were those of the northern states."

The spokesman for the organization in question put his finger on the crux of the situation, when he inferred that if such practices were allowed to go unchecked, the time would come when large numbers of hunters would be tempted to flout the game laws and indulge in indiscriminate slaughter and it would not be very long when the game birds of the country would follow the passenger pigeon into oblivion and one of the greatest resources of the country would be dissipated. There would no longer be any sport for our own people or for our American cousins. It is unthinkable that, in this enlightened day such a denouement would be permissible.

For Mutual Benefit

One cannot for a moment entertain the belief that more than a very few of the many hunters who have come to this country to enjoy sport would violate Canadian hospitality by indulging in indiscriminate and wanton slaughter, and it is inconceivable that an unsportsmanlike attitude would be condoned by the great majority of their own countrymen. Indeed, the game laws and regulations of this country are based on conventions which have been given the seal of approval of the American people as well as those of Canada. That, in itself, is proof that the people of the United States as well as those of this country are anxious that this great heritage should be preserved for the benefit of both for all time to come.

The existence of this great natural resource must not be sacrificed on the altar of momentary pleasure of a few selfish or thoughtless individuals, whether they be resident north or south of the international boundary. By mutual agreement the American and Canadian people have so decreed it. Neither must the goodwill and cordial relations which exist between the people of the two countries be jeopardized by heedless actions of a minute percentage of either. It would be penny wise and pound foolish to permit the goose which lays the golden eggs to be killed.

Alfalfa Crop Large

Alfalfa seed is a big crop in Saskatchewan. This year's crop should average 100 lbs. per acre and the 35,000 acres should yield over 2½ million pounds of registered and certified seed. Most of it is grown in the northern areas of the province.

To Relieve BABY'S HEAD COLD Misery

DO THIS: Massage his throat, chest, and back with Vicks VapoRub and tuck him into bed. Next, put a spoonful of VapoRub in a bowl of boiling water; place a newspaper or cloth over the bowl so the child's head like a tent, covering the bowl too, so the medicated vapors can be inhaled for several minutes. This treatment loosens phlegm—clears air-passages—checks tendency to cough—relieves local congestion. Long after he has relaxed into peaceful sleep, VapoRub's positive and vaporous action is still bringing relief and you can get a good night's rest too.

Scientific Advisory Board Is Created By Great Britain

Great Britain has created a scientific advisory board to strengthen her war effort by bringing eminent scientists into active co-operation with branches of the government.

The committee was appointed from the Royal society and given a secretary from the cabinet secretariat. Members include Sir William Bragg, president of the Royal society; Lord Hankey, chancellor of the duchy of Lancaster, was named chairman.

Travel At High Speed

The Air Hygiene Foundation at Pittsburgh reported that common cold germs, propelled by a sneeze, hunt new victims at a speed better than 100 miles an hour. "An unstuffed sneeze sprays the air with thousands of droplets, some of which travel 12 feet and at a rate as high as 150 feet per second," said a foundation bulletin.

Stories About Poland

Nazis Endeavoring To Stamp Out Every Spark Of Nationality

The hand of Hitler falls heavily on occupied Poland. By harsh decree and prison camp, Germany is endeavoring to stamp out the still glowing sparks of Polish nationality. By forced labor, she is endeavoring to repair her own dwindling supplies of food.

Polish-language newspapers published in the United States reveal some of the story. "Ameryka-Echo" of Toledo, Ohio, tells how, on the anniversary of the day when German troops first crossed the Polish frontier, German authorities held celebrations throughout all German-held territories. Every Polish town had to name one of its main thoroughfares after Adolf Hitler.

A new government decree makes every Polish landowner responsible for preparing all of his land for spring sowing. Any land lying fallow will be confiscated by the German authorities and rented to persons of their choosing.

Hundreds of thousands of Polish men and women have been sent to work on German farms and in factories since the spring of 1940. German authorities have started the registration of all Polish women from 15 to 40 for forced labor. Educated women are taken first and as intellectual work has been declared unsuitable for Poles, these women are made to scrub floors, and gather garbage.

Arthur Greiser, governor of Poland, recently declared in a radio speech, that Germans who have settled in Posen are "lords of creation" and must remain on their newly acquired lands forever. "Every German," he said, "must build his own house, unlike the primitive Polish houses, but corresponding to German character and needs. German youth must move into such homes and in them found new generations."

Polish soil is drenched with German blood and must remain German." "Kurjer Polski" published in Milwaukee, reports that Polish prisoners of war in Germany are starving. Only food parcels from home keep them alive. But the parcels are not coming regularly and deficiencies in food are frequent. Scoury has been observed in all camps.

New Rail Signal Box

Replaces Eight Formerly Used On English Railway Network

The largest railway signaling installation of its kind in the world is now being completed to cover the six miles' network of railway tracks at York Station (L.N.E.R.), England. Where, formerly, eight signal boxes were needed for this vital railway system, control will in future be directed from one central signal box.

An ingenious method of relay interlocking produces a remarkable economy of working, as the point and signal control levers are no longer directly linked. At the touch of a switch or lever, not only are all the necessary points operated and the signals cleared over the complete route, but, at the same time, any conflicting move is automatically prevented.

The principal advantage of the system is that the switches or levers are small and can actually be mounted on the track diagram which tells the signalman at a glance exactly what is happening in the area under his control. He knows from lights on the chart before him whether sections of the railway track are occupied or not, the indications of the signals, and what routes have been opened up.

The control panel covers 800 routes, 270 sets of points, 300 signals, 45 route indicators, and 10 junction indicators. More than 1,200 train movements a day will be directed from it.

United States Prepared To Take 51,720 Head Of Canadian Cattle

Canada may export to the United States up to 51,720 head of cattle, weighing 700 pounds or more, other than dairy cows, during the last quarter of 1940, which started October 1 the Dominion Department of Agriculture announced.

Under the Canada-United States trade agreement, it was provided that 193,850 head of such cattle may enter the United States from Canada at the reduced rate of 1½ cents per pound, provided that not more than 51,720 are imported in any one quarter of the calendar year.

Imports of such cattle during the first three-quarters of this year were sufficiently under the established quota for any quarter to permit entry at the reduced rate of the maximum quantity during the fourth quarter, the department said.

"In other words, we may export to the United States up to 51,720 heavy cattle at the reduced rate," it added.

Registration Of Women

Enthusiasm Shown For Engaging In War Work

Representatives of various women's organizations meeting in Toronto were informed that the Voluntary Registration of Canadian Women has practically completed its task of registering Canadian women able and willing to perform war work of various kinds.

The registration was conducted voluntarily, starting with the outbreak of war a year ago, and upwards of 250,000 women were registered, most of them having special qualifications.

At the meeting Senator Iva Fallick, the national chairman, reported that Prime Minister Mackenzie King had twice publicly praised the work of the registration and had pledged himself that the utmost use would be made of it.

Miss Margaret Hyndman, of Toronto, director of the work, told of the enthusiasm shown by women in every part of Canada.

Not Enough For Two

If Hitler Won War Mussolini Would Get Very Little

It would be vastly interesting to know if Mussolini has read Hitler's "Mein Kampf." Here is a paragraph that is of some note: "It must never be forgotten that nothing really great in the world has been achieved by coalitions; it has always been accomplished by a single victor. Joint successes, by their very origin, bear within them the seeds of future attrition, indeed of loss of what is already achieved. Great intellectual revolutions that really overthrow the world are thinkable and possible at all only as titanic struggles of individual units, never as enterprises of coalition." A thought that, for the man who waited until he believed it safe to engage in an enterprise of coalition, with the hope that a joint success would provide spoils enough to satisfy two victors—Brandon Sun.

Figures Show More Manufacturing Is Being Done On Prairies

The assumption that Canada's prairies are almost exclusively agricultural in their production is not borne out by the latest figures available at Ottawa concerning manufacturing in Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan. These point to a manufacturing production worth $279,474,000 furnishing employment for 42,314 people receiving salaries and wages amounting to $45,551,000. Western Canada may be one of the great granaries of the world, but it is also, apparently, developing from the standpoint of manufacturing.

The magistrate grumbled something, and the assaulted policeman stepped into the box and took his oath to tell the truth and nothing but the truth. He gave his stereotyped evidence, and again the magistrate looked at the drooping figure in the dock.

"What have you to say, Smith," he asked.

The man did not raise his head. "Is anything known about him? I notice that his address is not on the charge sheet."

"He refused his address, Your Worship," said the inspector.

"Remanded for inquiries!"

The jailer touched the prisoner's arm, and he looked up at him suddenly, stared wildly round the court, and then:

"May I ask what I am doing here?" he asked in a husky voice, and Jim nearly swooned.

For the black-faced man was Sir Joseph Layton!

Even the magistrate was startled, though he did not recognize the voice. He was about to give an order for the removal of the man when Jim pushed his way to his desk and whispered a few words.

"Who?" asked the magistrate. "Impossible!"

"May I ask"—it was the prisoner speaking again—"what is all this about—I really do not understand."

And then he swayed and would have fallen, but the jailer caught him in his arms.

"Take him out into my room." The magistrate was on his feet. The court stands adjourned for ten minutes," he said, and disappeared behind the curtains into his office.

A few seconds later they brought in the limp figure of the prisoner and laid him on a sofa.

"Are you sure? You must be mistaken, Mr. Carlton!"

"I am perfectly sure of him—even though his moustache has been shaved off," said Jim, looking into the face of the unconscious man. "This is Sir Joseph Layton, the Foreign Minister. I could not make a mistake, I know him so well."

The magistrate peered closer. "I almost think you are right," he said, "but how on earth—"

He did not complete his sentence and soon after went out to carry on the business of the court. Jim had sent an officer to a neighboring chemist for a pot of cream, and by the time the divisional surgeon arrived all doubt as to the identity of the black-faced man had been removed with his make-up. His white hair was stained, his moustache removed, and so far as they could see, not one stitch of his clothing bore any mark which would have identified him.

The doctor pulled up the sleeve and examined the forearm.

"He has been doing very considerably," he said, pointing to a number of little punctures. "I don't exactly know what drug was used, but there was hyosin in it, I'll swear."

Leaving Sir Joseph to the care of the surgeon, Jim hurried out to the telephone and in a few minutes was in communication with the Prime Minister.

"I'll come along in a few minutes," said the astonished gentleman. "Be careful that nothing about this gets into the papers—will you please ask the magistrate, as a special favor to me, to make no reference in Court?"

Fortunately, only one police court reporter had been present, and he had seen nothing that aroused his suspicion, and his curiosity as to why the prisoner had been carried to the magistrate's room was easily satisfied.

Sir Joseph was still unconscious when the Premier arrived. An ambulance had been summoned and was already in the little courtyard, and after a vain attempt to get him to speak, the Foreign Secretary was smuggled out into the yard, wrapped in a blanket, and dispatched to a nursing home.

"I confess I'm floored," said the Prime Minister in despair. "A nigger, mister! ... assaulting the police! It is incredible! You say you were at the police station when he was brought in; didn't you recognize him then?"

"No, sir," said Jim truthfully. "I was not greatly interested—he seemed just an ordinary drunk to me. But one thing I will swear: he was not under the influence of any drug when he was brought into the station. The inspector said he looked of healthy, and he certainly found no difficulty in giving expression to his mind!"

The Premier threw out despairing hands.

"It is beyond me; I cannot understand what has happened. The whole thing is monstrously incredible. I feel I must be dreaming."

As soon as the Premier had gone, Jim drove to the nursing home to which the unfortunate minister had been taken. The Every street inspector had gone with the ambulance, and he had an astonishing story to tell.

"What do you think we found in his pocket?" he asked.

"You can't startle me," said Jim recklessly. "What was it—the Treaty of Versailles?"

The inspector opened his pocket book and took out a small black visiting card, blank, that is, except for a number of scratches, probably made by some blunt instrument, but the writer had attempted to get too much on so small a space, for writing it was, Jim saw when he examined the card carefully. Two words were decipherable, "Marling" and "Harlow" and these had been printed in capitals. He took a lead pencil, scraped the point upon the card, and sifted the fine dust over the scratches until they became more definite. The writing was still indecipherable even with such an aid to legibility as the lead powder afforded. Apparently the message had been written with a pin, for in two places the card was perforated.

"The first word is 'whosoever,'" said Jim suddenly. "'Whosoever' ... 'please' is the fourth word and that seems to be underlined ..."

He studied the card for a long time and then shook his head.

"Harlow" is clear and "Marling" is clear. What do you make of it, Inspector?"

The officer took the card from his hand and examined it with a blank expression.

"I don't know anything about the writing or what it means," he said. "The thing I am trying to work out in my mind is how did that card come in his pocket—it was not there last night when the sergeant searched him—he takes his coat on it!"

CHAPTER XXI.

A brief paragraph appeared in the morning newspapers:

"Sir Joseph Layton, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, is seriously ill in a nursing home. It would take more than this simple paragraph to restore the markets of the world to the level they had been when the threat of a monstrous war had sent them tumbling like a house of cards. The principal item of news remained this world panic, which the Foreign Secretary's speech had initiated. A great economist computed that the depreciation in gilt-edged securities represented more extent through the tragedy-of that unhappy speech.

The man puzzled him. If he was, as Jim was convinced, behind the scene, if his clever brain had devised, and by some mysterious means had brought about the financial panic, what end had he in view? He had been already one of the three richest men in England. He had not the excuse that he had a mammoth industry to benefit. He had no imperial project to bring to fruition. Had he been dreaming of new empires created out of the wild bush-lands of unpopulated Africa; were he a great philanthropist who had some gigantic enterprise to advance for the benefit of mankind, this passionate desire for gold might be understood if it could not be excused.

Something Like A Scooter

German War Effort Developed Life Only On One Side

A Sault boy of perhaps five or six years of age, says the Sault Star, Marie Star, was speeding along Queen street on a home-made "scooter," constructed from a roller skate, a bit of board and an old box.

With his right foot placed firmly in the box, the left was used to propel him along the sidewalk. Occasionally it, too, was rested for a moment on the box. So his progress was streamlined and carried out with comparatively little effort.

But for all that there is a weakness in the scheme. As with so many others who start out to streamline things, the lad showed a tendency to a one-sided development. It was, during the time he was observed, always the left foot that was engaged in the propulsive exercises. The right leg, resting always on the shelf, wasn't getting its share of the exercise. If that were kept up, things might go wrong.

Something of that kind seems to have happened to Germany. It has been streamlined and speeded up for war. But its development has been one-sided. The things that make life worth living in other lands have been overlooked, the natural capabilities in other lines have not been given a chance to develop.

That is why Germany is a menace to the world to-day. Too much may be sacrificed to streamlining.

The Sault boy's life won't be always like that. But can Germany's be changed?

Profiteers in Japan

Men Getting Rich Through War Are Spending Money Lavishly

Tokyo profiteers who have gained their riches by illegal gains in the war industries are crowding hot spring resorts and spending their money in what the authorities regard as "a deplorably lavish manner." They are for the most part dealers in fuel, metal alloys, rice and fertilizers and are said to be reaping great clandestine profits through secret sales at higher than official prices. Some of these spendthrifts register under false addresses lest they attract too much suspicion. War industry profits have brought a boom to practically all holiday resorts throughout the country.

Tip From Germany

Keep your soap on a string, German newspapers advise—it's more economical. Soap is rationed in wartime Germany. The papers say it keeps dry this way, thus lasts longer, and all you have to do is touch it with wetted hands.

Hitler has issued a decree limiting the sale of false teeth in Germany and occupied countries. But the "gummers" may derive a bit of comfort from the thought that there'll not be much to eat this winter, any way.

Iron For The Empire

Canada Likely To Have Plenty For Export Soon
The St. Thomas Times-Journal says:

Canada, according to an Ottawa forecast several months ago, may shortly be independent of foreign sources of iron ore for the first time in its history. The Dominion may, in fact, become an exporter of fine hematite comparable in grade and in freedom from impurities with the famed Swedish ore, about which so much was heard during the war campaign, says a writer in C-L-Oval.

About 132 miles west and slightly north of the twin cities of Port William and Port Arthur lies a rock-bound, high-shored little lake, Steep Rock Lake, and it is under these northern waters that scientists, after making many hundreds of diamond drill holes, have partially mapped out a hidden hoard of many millions of tons of premium iron ore.

The plan of operation has been to sink a shaft on shore until it is extended well below the bed of the lake. From the shaft a cross-cut has been driven towards the unseen ore body. Subject to the difficulties which man must always face when he undertakes to fight nature on ground of her choosing, the mine workings are now on the edge of reaching the iron deposits, and with the aid of modern explosives the first iron will soon be blasted out and hoisted to the surface, possibly at the rate of 2,000 tons a day in the early stages.

Had Plenty Of Help

Talk about enterprises—a restaurant owner at Manchester moved his kitchen staff with the day's vegetables into a shelter during an air-raid alarm and with added voluntary help had the eatables prepared in quick order.

Steel containing 3½ per cent. nickel is chiefly noted for its toughness and is commonly used in automobile crankshafts.

British Columbia leads all other Canadian provinces in fisheries production, with Nova Scotia ranking second.

Behind The Headlines At Ottawa

(By DEAN WILSON)

It must be reported in this column that while the people of Canada are engaged at the present time in a great war in the most critical period of the whole history, it is an absolutely indispensable issue of life-and-death for the survival of Canada as a nation amongst nations that the ordinary man-in-the-street, who is really the backbone of this nation in peace-time and who really makes the greatest sacrifices in war-time, should not mistake the sense or meaning of any national legislation involving the complicated machinery for conducting this war. In fact, success in this war depends equally upon the complete understanding, courage, stamina and resourcefulness of the ordinary man on the home front just as much as the man on the battle front.

It is with this truism in mind that the Government in Ottawa is putting into operation a giant new plan of unemployment insurance in face of widespread and thundering opposition against the scheme throughout the whole country on the ground that it may be a desirable measure in peace-time but it is inadvisable in this war period because it will add to the burden of taxation on this nation already very heavily taxed; it will add a staff of at least 3,000 to the public pay-roll already overburdened by over 6,000 new employees in the civil service as a result of the war effort; it will cost to administer the scheme about $5,250,000 a year; it will distract the minds of the people of Canada from the all-absorbing task of winning this war. Briefly, it can be reported that behind the scenes along Parliament Hill this unemployment insurance law, its expenditures and appointments, have involved the most contentious enactments or decisions ever witnessed by this experienced observer during the past twenty years.

But under these extraordinary circumstances of war why is the government of Canada proceeding with this unemployment insurance plan? First, the authorities along Parliament Hill desire to benefit from the ghastly lesson of the last war when demobilization was accompanied by very distressful conditions of unemployment in Canada which became worse and worse with the passing of time. They want to avoid the repetition of similar serious conditions at the end of this tragic war. At the present time more people are employed in Canada than at any other similar period in our history and there are concrete reasons for the conviction that even this all-time high record will be exceeded as the war proceeds. When it is remembered that the wider the coverage the greater the fund, there can be no more appropriate time for the adoption of unemployment insurance than at this period.

Second, apprehension has always shackled effective and absolutely wholehearted war efforts and the psychological benefits can result from such a scheme, if the masses of workers realize that in the period of readjustment following this war they and their dependents will be protected for a reasonable period. This peace of mind is certain to prove a great stimulus to the production of those materials and supplies which are essential for the war effort.

Third, while it is admitted by experts that the plan is not a cure-all for unemployment and in the nature of an experimental palliative, yet it is deemed a wise measure to aid unemployment relief because Canada has spent the stupendous sum of over $345,861,770 on relief ever since the Relief Act was passed on September 22, 1930 which is an average of well over $53,000,000 a year, with the additional remark that these staggering costs did not include more than $142,733,671 loaned to the provinces, and other similar expenditures on relief projects, youth training plans, etc., all of which sums may never be recovered, or their recovery is a matter of gloomy conjecture.

Fourth, the new unemployment insurance plan while adopting the basic principles of the Act of 1935 which was declared unconstitutional has been improved considerably in the light of experiences in other countries with similar plans of aiding workmen, notably in the United Kingdom and the United States, mainly by the untiring and brilliant efforts of one of the best informed authorities on labor problems in Canada, namely Abraham A. Heaps, former member of Parliament for Winnipeg North and now engaged by the Dominion Labor Department. While the new plan will call for an increase in the number of full time employment officers from 74 to 90 and the cost of services would jump from $500,000 a year to $1,000,000, yet in face of the scattered population and other local conditions more persons would benefit and the actual cost per person would be less. The Act of 1935 applied to 1,600,000 wage earners but the new plan applies to 2,100,000 workers including 2,500,000 dependents or a total of 4,600,000 persons. The cost of administration per person under the Act of 1935 was about $4.78 or the total of $8,759,000 a year, but under the new scheme it would be about $2.50 a person or a total of $5,250,000. In the United States, the plan covered 27,880,000 insured persons, costing $2.10 a person and the personnel necessary was one for every 500 insured wage workers.

This new plan of unemployment insurance is one of the most important and useful legislative actions ever promulgated on Parliament Hill to aid a large percentage of the population to maintain a normal standard of living at all time not through charity in the form of public relief but by insurance benefit.

DOMINION TEXTILE PLANTS PRODUCE 15,000,000 POUNDS OF VITAL WAR MATERIALS

Vital war materials totalling fifteen million pounds have been produced by Dominion Textile Company in the first year of the war, the management states. These materials include uniforms, cloth, tents, tarpaulin duck and duck for kit bags and bandoliers.

Other lines are khaki flannel and drab flannel shirting, drill shirting and summer battle dress cloth of three kinds—for troop, air forces and officers. Yarns for toques, mitts, underwear and sweaters, as well as tire cord for mechanized equipment and ballistics for ground sheets and palliases are among the articles produced.

A CHALLENGE TO CANADIANS

EMERGENCY CALL!

From the shores of our Motherland comes an appeal for help which no true Canadian can fail to heed. While we live in comfort, death drops on that embattled island. The need for Red Cross assistance is urgent. Our sons and brothers are over there. On land, at sea, in the air, they face death daily. We must be prepared to help them when they are sick or wounded.

Red Cross help is needed on behalf of soldier and civilian alike. Hospitals and hospital equipment, surgical supplies and dressings, ambulances and X-Ray equipment will be needed. Overnight the need may become so urgent that lives may be sacrificed if help cannot be sent at once.

Never before has there been so great a need for Red Cross assistance. This challenge to humanity must be answered. Give to the Red Cross. Give to the utmost NOW!

GOOD TIME TO PLANT

MANY PERENNIALS

(Lethbridge Experimental Station)
Experience at the Lethbridge Experimental Station has shown that perennial flowers are best planted in the fall. No flower garden is complete without perennials and few if any flowers need as little attention when once started.

In preparing the soil some grower trench to a depth of 1 1/2 to 2 feet and add well rotted cow manure which is worked into the lower foot or so of trenched soil. Care is taken not to bury any manure where it will be likely to come into direct contact with any of the new plants. A good plan is to first remove six or more inches of the surface soil, replacing it after the bed has been trenched and manured. In addition, chemical fertilizer is useful. Ammonium phosphate is recommended, and it should be applied broadcast at the rate of about 8 oz. to 100 square feet of bed and worked into the soil by spading. At this station the practice is to apply well rotted manure as top dressing just before freeze-up. This covering protects the plants from excessive thawing and freezing, and helps to conserve moisture. In the spring the longer straw of the manure is raked off, but the shorter material is forked into the ground near the plants to provide added fertility. The peony is best planted in the fall where adequate moisture is available and best results are obtained by planting early in September. The varieties are propagated by dividing the roots of the old plants and the divisions are cut so that each will have at least one bud. The plants are set so that the crowns are about two inches below the surface. The plants need plenty of room for full development and need to be set three to four feet apart and in dry land five feet.

Tulip bulbs are usually set out here in October though late September planting is quite satisfactory. In planting the bulbs are set about 8 inches apart and 4 inches deep. Some of the early flowering varieties of tulips grown here include Proserpine, Verano, brilliant Cottage Maid, Duchess de Parma, Chrysolora and Pink Beauty. Varieties of Haarlem, Grot-ten and Bartington, just to mention a few. The iris is a very easily grown perennial that deserves a place in every flower garden. In its numerous varieties are found many shades of colour that adds greatly to the charm and beauty of its delicate bloom. The iris is propagated very easily by dividing the roots of an old plant. This is usually done in the fall at this station though spring planting gives very satisfactory results.

There is not space to even mention the many other desirable perennials available to the flower grower who is planning a perennial border though other varieties that deserve consideration, to name only a few, are the Iceland and Oriental Poppies, varieties of Columbine, Coreopsis, Gaillardia and Delphinium. All are easily started for seed or by dividing old plants.
